In the late '80's, American Independent Film burst on the media scene with the promise of new visions, new stories, and new approaches. Ted Hope was among the first producers to emerge from the pack and today remains one of the few consistently delivering vital and exciting new work. As times, platforms, and tastes change, Ted's work continues to break new ground, reach new audiences, and define the term "Independent." Hope's Hope has brought to the screen the first features of Todd Field, Michel Gondry, Hal Hartley, Nicole Holofcener, Moises Kaufman, and Bob Pulcini & Shari Berman, Alan Ball among others.
